DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Swinamer et al. in view of Business Wire, p06160247, dated June 16, 1998.

Swinamer et al. shows all of the limitations of the claims except for specifying the use of a wireless management device/PDA including displaying information and sending information to and from the PDA and the POS via a central controller also using wireless modems.

Swinamer et al. shows, figure 1, a hardwired method of communicating (sending) request for management decisions (override details), including price information, credit clearance (monetary pick-up, approval), security alerts (lock up of POS) and other incidents requiring the manager's attention. This is done for a plurality of POS terminals. The manager is at the master station (central controller system) and can determine through verbal communication the satisfactoriness or unsatisfactoriness level of the POS terminal and has the ability to fix problems to ensure satisfactoriness.

Business Wire, p06160247, dated June 16, 1998 teaches that on the Retail Systems '98 conference in New Orleans where 3Com demonstrated its popular PalmPilot (TM) (wireless management device which receives, displays, and sends information wirelessly through a central controller such as a WAN.) connected organizer at Retail Systems '98. The Palm computing platform is an open software architecture for handheld computing that provides an ideal basis for third-party developers to create innovative mobile computing solutions. During Retail Systems '98 using the PathBuilder (TM) line of a WAN, 3com showed new on-line applications to the store supporting functions like human resources, decision support, special orders, and customer delivery all in order to improve information flow to better serve customers.

Based on the teaching of the above Business Wire article, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify the Swinamer system to incorporate the PalmPilots and WAN of 3com in order to improve information flow to better serve customers.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Nation's Restaurant News v32n44 PP:47 Nov 2, 1998 shows many different wireless communication applications.
